PARENTS RULES FOR DELINQUENCY...

IN THE VALLEY OF THE MOON

Well. . . Well. . . Well. . . Here are a few rules for parents whose ambition is to bring up a bunch of delinquents. . .

Begin with infancy to give the child everything he wants; thus he will grow up to believe the world owes him a living. . .

Never give him any spiritual training; wait until he's 21 and let him "decide for himself. . . ."

Pick up everything he leaves laying around, and otherwise do everything for him so he will gain experience at throwing responsibility on others. . .

Quarrel frequently in his presence, so he won't be shocked when the home breaks up later. . .

Take his part against neighbors, teachers and policemen; they are all prejudiced. . .

When he gets into real trouble, which he will, apologize for yourself: "I never could do a thing with him. . ."

Prepare for a life of grief. . . You will have it. . .

Thank you,
The Publisher
